Updated on January 20th, 2019 Share this: Comments “Advertisements” I am an it consultant. And now i want to send my documents as attached files along with attachments. But in firefox the file attachments are being displayed not the webpages. So, can i send or preview the attachments along with webpages like in gmail. And is it possible for attachments. 2017.12.05 Soak” Glad to hear you’re doing well. Thanks for the kind words. Jill” I use Firefox and I have Chrome as well as Edge, so I’m not sure which browser you’re using, but it’s possible that the security settings on a firewall or router may interfere with Firefox or Chrome. My best guess is that you’re using something along the lines of a home router with or without the firewall and you’re using a dynamic IP address. In my experience, a firewall has a habit of blocking access to the SSL port (or some other port) so it’s possible that you’re blocked from viewing those websites at all. I don’t know if your ISP’s firewall is blocking access to some port(s) but you can check the IP addresses that are used to connect to those sites by going to www.geektoolbox.com and checking the IP addresses of the websites that you visit in Firefox. That said, I haven’t used Edge so I can’t speak on its ability to view attachments. I also work with CS5 and CS6 so I’m not sure if it’s been upgraded to CS6 but it should be possible to save files as “attached files” in CS6 if you use a browser other than Firefox. Nikhil” Hi, I am looking for a solution to convert a pdf file into word format. I am an assistant librarian and we are moving to a new library and new computers and everybody is using MS Office 365. But they don’t have the PDF converter and i want to send a pdf file as an email attachments to some of my colleagues. I am using Google chrome. Thank you. 2016.11.29 Srinivasan” It seems like
